

Imagine this: After a delicious dinner and glass of wine, your partner leans over to give you a quick kiss. With such a beautiful evening fresh in your mind, this brief peck turns into a passionate embrace. Before you know it, you're headed to the bedroom, hastily shedding your clothes along the way. Once there, the bed linens and decorative pillows are swiftly cast to the floor as your embrace tightens. Not wanting this delightful unfolding of events to hit a speed bump, you reach for your handbag, clumsily searching for a condom while trying to keep your lover in the mood.

After several moments of frustration, you finally give up, and admit that you can't find any protection. "No worries," your lover replies, "I always carry one in my wallet." After searching in the dark for what seems like an eternity, they locate their trousers, pull out their wallet, remove the condom, and begin putting it into place. But just as the mood is beginning to pick back up, the condom breaks, leaving you both dissatisfied, frustrated, and more than a little bit grumpy.

Let's face it; a broken condom is a passion-killer. We're a company built on passion, so we did something about it.

We know facts aren't sexy, but you should remember that:

- Humidity, heat, sunlight, and direct exposure to air can break down latex, weakening it by up to 90%.
- Friction from repeated opening, closing, and sitting on your wallet can weaken latex, even though the condom's wrapper may appear intact.
- Even if a condom is carried loose in your pocket, body heat and friction from walking can invariably impair its effectiveness.
- Keys or other sharp objects can puncture loose condoms in your handbag or pocket.

What this means, ladies and gentlemen, is that storing a condom in your wallet or purse presents a danger of decreasing the condom's effectiveness. Therefore, the optimum way to carry and store your condoms is in a specialized carrying case.

Tell me more!

A [company name removed] condom wallet is a special case that's always there for your special moments.

Our wallets are constructed to carry three condoms, giving you more than one backup should you and your partner be in the mood for "round two." We also carefully craft our condom wallets to offer a snug fit right out of the box, as the soft, high-grade leather or suede will stretch over time, which gives you peace of mind that your protection will never fall out, even if the button unsnaps.

We made sure to offer our condom wallets in a wide variety of colours, which allows you to match your handbag, outfit, or, if you're feeling especially saucy, to your underwear.

But why leather? Because it's a natural, beautiful product that is pleasant to the touch, just like your partner. Leather is also long lasting, tear/puncture resistant, and has natural imperfections that give your condom wallet its own unique character. Leather has an exceptional ability to allow ventilation and evaporation, and is easy to care for; simply use a soft, damp sponge or cloth to remove any surface dust or stains.

The long and short of it is that our condom wallets are built to last. We're certain you won't be disappointed.

But we understand the [company name removed] condom wallet isn't for everyone.

Some may enjoy having their condoms float around aimlessly in their pocket or handbag, and the very real danger this behavior presents the next time they're used.

Some may feel the "ring" left in their wallet is appealing to the checkout clerk at the grocery store. They may not appreciate practicing safe sex, or how a condom wallet can help them do just this. They may not be partial to classy, fashionable, quality products with a modest price tag.

But you're different.

You're in touch with your sexuality, and understand the importance of practicing it safely. You appreciate quality, but also being frugal. You're classy, stylish, and ready to try new things.

Whether you're young, old, male, female, heterosexual, homosexual, or transsexual, you're just who we had in mind when designing the [company name removed] condom wallet.

Who is [company name removed]?

[Company name removed] is passionate about providing erotic men and women with luxurious, functional sex toy storage and travel cases that are both discreet and hygienic. We make our products for those who are in touch with their sexuality, and who are not afraid to explore it, with (or without) a partner.

So go ahead; liberate your sexuality. Open your senses, satisfy your curiosity, set out on an adventure, and be open to new experiences.

We'll be there when you do.
